

Dear Mr. Kline:

I am hoping that you still remember me, I am Arun Sinketh, one of the university students that received scholarship funding from Sam Relief Organization from 2006 to 2008. You were the sponsor for my studies in the last two years when I was at university. I am sorry for being late in sending you the final report on my graduation in June 2008.

I am still working at Angkor Hospital for Children (AHC) and now I am Director of Public Relations. I have used a lot of skills and knowledge I learnt from school to apply to my current job, especially the tasks relating to finance and accounting. Even though I am not directly involved with patient care, I am responsible for raising awareness and funds to support the hospital. I have developed the process of making income reports from the donations, so that we now make daily records and weekly reports which are sent to our finance and accounting department. I am planning to extend this to create an accounting system for the department that I am in charge of, in order to keep a record of the profits and losses of the PR department separate from those of the hospital.

In the near future, I would like to study a Master Degree in Public Relations and I have been seeking a scholarship for international students to study abroad. If this plan is not successful, I will look for a school inside Cambodia to fulfill this ambition.

With this email, I would also like to include our gratitude for your generous donation to buy rice for the sick children at AHC. Your tremendous support is priceless and incredibly useful for the hospital's daily needs. Rice is one of the many big needs at AHC, and is essential for many of the sick children that are hospitalized here.

Finally, I would like to express a big thank you for your support for my studies and for the other students, plus your support for the hospital as well as Sam Relief organization. I am hoping that you will continue to be a good friend and supporter to Mr. Sambonn in the future.

Sincerely yours,

Sinketh Arun
